

What happened

By Levi Abeyta

I woke up in the middle of nowhere with bruises over every inch of my body. I woke up in a forest that was filled with trees that had glowing green lights in the middle. I thought it was so weird but it looked familiar. I looked up at the sky hoping this was a dream and saw a metal in the sky. I knew that everything was a simulation but I wondered why. I didn't think I did anything worth being stalked or captured or both. I wondered what I did before I was here. Was I a criminal, did I have a rare disease, was I someone special. If I was, why would I be locked up. I started running but for some reason I couldn't stop until I reached the border of the forest where I tried breaking the border but it was metal. I tried and tried but not even a dent was to be seen in the wall. I wondered what it was made of. If I couldn't get out with brute force then I would have to get out through strategy. I started to scream so if someone was watching me they would see me. I saw a guy with a lab coat run to a window. A window! That window was my only chance to get out. When out of nowhere more people in lab coats came out of the wall and started to hold me down. I broke free and ran to the area the people came out of so I could escape before it closed. I made it I was out or so I thought. I left so maybe I could see the real world but the world I was hoping for wasn't like I thought.
